Let Alexandra Richards show you around Dorset's stunning rural landscapes and dramatic coastline.

- Get prehistoric and discover the best places to go fossil-hunting on the Jurassic Coast.
- Lace up your boots and walk the Dorset section of the hugely popular South West Coast Path – the UK's longest national trail.
- Savour the tastes of Dorset with suggestions for restaurants, pubs and food stores packed full of locally sourced food and drink.

Alexandra Richards had this to say about why Dorset is the perfect place for a Slow Travel guide: "As I was wandering the county explaining that I was writing a book called Slow Travel Dorset, the response was frequently 'Hmmm, I suppose we are pretty slow around here,' accompanied by an enigmatic smile. It occurred to me that my parents and I, like many Dorset folk, live in accordance with the Slow ethos but without giving it a label."

About the author

Alexandra Richards was born in the tiny village of Stour Provost in picturesque north Dorset, where she lived until her mid-20s. Career and travel writing then took her elsewhere, but she has always kept a base in Dorset, never wanting to sever ties with the county, and spending time away has given her a new appreciation for – and (visitor's) perspective on – the area. Dorset's hold on Alex has only grown stronger with time and she is now returning to live there full time.

About Bradt Travel Guides

Founded in 1974, Bradt is now the largest independently owned travel guide publisher in the UK, with more than 200 titles currently in print, over half of which have no direct competition from other guidebook lists. The company has won many awards including gold in the Top Guide Book Series category at the 2019 Wanderlust awards.
