Discover huge tracts of pristine wilderness, home to stunning wildlife, with Chris McIntyre's guide to Namibia.

- Explore the Namib desert – the world's oldest desert, and home to plants and animals found nowhere else on earth!
- Marvel at the bizarre Welwitschia mirabilis plant, which can live for millennia.
- Drive the backroads of Namibia through landscapes of silvery-white sand, and barely see a soul.

Chris McIntyre had this to say about his feelings towards Namibia: "Since the last edition of this book was published, I have taken my children (now aged six and nine) there several times. Every time I go, I am again surprised at the ease of travel in Namibia, and seeing it through their eyes I'm reminded just how remarkable this country is."

About the author

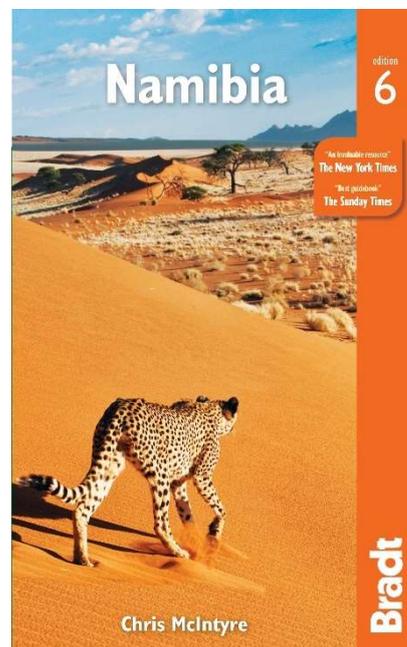

Chris McIntyre went to Africa in 1987, after reading physics at Queen's College, Oxford. He co-authored the UK's first guidebook to Namibia and Botswana, published by Bradt, before spending three years as a shipbroker in London. He wrote the first editions of Bradt's guides to Zambia and Botswana, and since has co-authored several guides to Tanzania and Zanzibar, whilst regularly returning to Namibia, and continuing to ensure that it's up to date. Meanwhile Chris's day job is managing director of Expert Africa - a specialist tour operator which organises high-quality trips throughout Africa for individual travellers from around the world.

About Bradt Travel Guides
