

Date: 05.05.2019

Taiwan has flown under the radar for years, but it's finally getting the attention it deserves. Let long time resident Steven Crook show you around!

- Get cultural with a visit to the world's finest collection of Chinese artefacts at the National Palace Museum in bustling capital Taipei.
- Find out where to go to tuck in to the best Taiwanese street food the country has to offer.
- Lace up your walking boots and trek around some stunning scenery – including the towering marble gorges of Taroko National Park.

Steven Crook had this to say about why readers should consider a trip to Taiwan: "With so many people watching China, isn't it time to take a look at Taiwan? A democratic and dynamic society that hints at what China could have been if it hadn't gone down the path of communism, and at what China may yet become."

To request a review copy or arrange an interview, Q&A or talk with Steven, please contact: marketing@bradtguides.com. Competition giveaways and reader discount codes are also available for this title.

Taiwan by Steven Crook
Published by Bradt Travel Guides, 5 June 2019
9781784776220, £16.99

About the author

Steven Crook was backpacking through Asia in 1991 when he decided to go to Taiwan. He was running out of money and needed a job. That wasn't the only reason, however. Taiwan was scarcely mentioned in his school books and nobody he knew had ever been there. By 2009, when he accepted Bradt's offer to write the first edition of this travel guide, he'd seen most of the country - but because new museums, trails and other attractions keep opening, his 'to do and see' list doesn't seem to be getting any shorter.

About Bradt Travel Guides

Founded in 1974, Bradt is now the largest independently owned travel guide publisher in the UK, with more than 200 titles currently in print, over half of which have no direct competition from other guidebook lists. The company has won many awards including gold in the Top Guide Book Series category at the 2019 Wanderlust awards.

www.bradtguides.com

Pioneering guides to exceptional places