Welcome to our 2020 catalogue.

There have been some significant changes at Bradt recently. A few months ago we moved to bigger offices, and we are now safely settled in the Buckinghamshire market town of Chesham (with only a few cardboard boxes still to unpack). And, as we go to press, we have just completed the acquisition of Footprint Travel Guides, a publisher with a long history and a list that complements ours very nicely (particularly with its guides to the Caribbean and South America). Such changes reflect the strong growth that Bradt has witnessed in the past few years, further reinforcing our position as the UK's largest independently owned guidebook publisher.

Alongside these changes, other things have continued as usual. For the second year in a row, Bradt was voted Top Guidebook Series in the Wanderlust Reader Awards, and Hilary Bradt's very own Slow Travel: Exmoor National Park was declared Best Guidebook of the Year by the British Guild of Travel Writers. We also stayed true to our roots by commissioning a typically colourful choice of new books for publication in 2020. The most eye-catching title – and as 'Bradtish' as any we have ever published – is Socotra, which will be the first and only guide to this remote island off Yemen. Elsewhere, we expand our coverage of Britain with Inner Hebrides, Wild Woods and Britain in a Bottle (focusing on our best breweries, vineyards and distilleries), and in December we'll publish Bhutan (a guide to the country that famously pioneered the idea of gross natural happiness). Northern Greece adds to our list of books providing in-depth information on areas within mainstream European destinations, while the Greek islands are the subject of Wild Abandon, a new title in our series of travel literature which sees Jennifer Barclay explore the deserted places of the Dodecanese.

You'll find fuller details of our books in this catalogue, as well as details of our annual travel writing competition and our expert pick of hotlist holiday destinations for the year ahead – our Exceptional Places 2020. And please note that all Footprint titles can now be ordered from our distributors listed on p.33.

As ever, happy travels.

EXCEPTIONAL PLACES 2020

Every winter we put our heads together, canvass our authors and choose what we think will be the most interesting travel destinations for the coming year. Some of these are places we already have excellent guidebooks to, others are on our wish list. You'll find specially commissioned articles on all of them on our website from January onwards. This year, we've expanded the brief to include a couple of special recommendations: a drinking tour of Britain and two alternatives to the Olympic Games in Japan. Happy travels!

Arctic Coast Way, Iceland

Officially opened in June 2019, this 900km coastal road explores some of Iceland's remotest corners. Leave the tourist trail behind and discover a landscape epitomised by nature's might, where volcanic peaks and dramatic mountains give way to glacial fjords, black-sand beaches and a smattering of tiny islets. From Viking villages to whale-watching hubs, each of the small towns en route offers an insight into life at the Arctic border.

Beirut

Mention you're going to Beirut on holiday and you might see some jaws drop. But the cosmopolitan Lebanese capital is making a name for itself on the tourism scene, combining fantastic nightlife and quirky museums with plenty of day-trip opportunities. With Ryanair now offering flights from London (via Paphos) for as little as £150 return, it's never been easier to enjoy a city break in the Middle East.

Eritrea

This unique destination is too often overlooked by all but the most adventurous travellers, but there has been no better time to visit this country since independence in 1991. In 2018, a peace agreement was signed with Ethiopia – ending a two-decade long impasse – while in 2017 the nation's capital, Asmara, was awarded UNESCO World Heritage status for its remarkable Modernist architecture. Tourism infrastructure may still be in its infancy, but therein lies the charm.

Inner Hebrides

While Skye has long been one of Scotland's most popular holiday destinations, the lesser-known smaller outlets of this rugged archipelago are slowly starting to realise their tourism potential. Boasting a new wheelchair-friendly whisky route and an island known as the 'Hawaii of the North', these windswept isles offer wildlife, food and culture experiences in spades. Go now before everyone else does.

The Okinawa Islands, Japan

2020 sees the Olympic Games head to Japan, but if you want to couple a jam-packed holiday with a little R&R, this undiscovered island chain is for you. Once the Pacific battleground between Japan and the US in World War II, the Okinawa Islands today boast award-winning beaches, pristine coral reefs and exotic jungles. The government has significantly increased tourist accessibility in recent years, opening the islands up for the world to explore.

The Route of Parks, Chile

This newly-formed 1,700-mile scenic highway through the dramatic wildernesses of Patagonia joins the Carretera Austral to the End of the World route, finishing at Cape Horn in the far south of Chile. It passes through 17 national parks, including five new ones created in 2018 as part of an ambitious project to promote sustainable tourism in the region.

Socotra

This island would be overrun with tourists were it not for fact that it's a dependency of Yemen, although it lies around 240 miles from that war-torn country. Possessing extraordinary flora and fauna, a dramatic landscape, pristine coral reefs and sandy beaches it has everything a tourist could want, including a lack of other tourists.

Suriname

Not everyone can point to Suriname on a map, but this Dutch-speaking South American nation offers some of the best wildlife experiences on the continent. With 90% of its surface area swathed in jungle, it harbours a huge diversity of wildlife, from sloths and jaguars to over 700 bird species. And thanks to a new twice-weekly flight service from Panama with Copa Air, this under-the-radar ecotourist destination has never been easier to visit.

Zimbabwe

There is the sense of a new beginning in Zimbabwe, although the appeal of its natural wonders – the Hwange National Park, Zambezi Valley and the mighty Victoria Falls – has endured throughout the country's political upheavals. Zimbabwe offers everything and more that you'd find in Africa's safari hotspots, only without the crowds.

UK's distilleries and vineyards

Holidays in Britain no longer mean missing out on one of the great treats of foreign travel: drink. You no longer have to go to the south of France to enjoy a world-class sparkling wine, nor do you need to hop over to Belgium to sample a decent craft beer. Embrace the staycation and explore what our country has to offer, from cider farms in the Scilly Isles to Shetland whisky distilleries.

World Nomad Games/ Nemean Games

Want to see the Olympics in Japan this summer but can't afford the flights? Then head either to Turkey instead, where the biennial World Nomad Games will be held, or to the Peloponnese in Greece for the seventh modern Nemean Games.

Hosting more than 3,000 athletes from 77 countries, the World Nomad Games showcase all manner of traditional nomadic sports – in particular equestrian ones like buz kashi – and also serve as a platform for traditional national dances from across central Asia.

First revived in 1996, the Nemean Games invite participants of all ages and abilities to don tunics and compete in the same venue as athletes from the fourth century BC. The result is a colourful festival where families with picnics on the slopes of the stadium are as much a part of the spectacle as the runners. The Seventh Nemead takes place at the end of June.

NEW TITLES AND NEW EDITIONS

BRADT ON BRITAIN

We've been looking back at how the Bradt list has evolved and have been delighted to notice that 2020 marks the 20th anniversary of Bradt's first guide to our own shores. In 2000 we published Ben le Vay's Eccentric Britain, which became our most successful guide ever in its first edition. We then followed it up with a mini-series of 'Eccentric' titles to British destinations, all written by Ben, many of which are still in print.

Much as we love venturing off the beaten track in hard-to-reach places, we also take enormous pleasure in exploring our own back yard, especially bringing to light areas or aspects of British life which are less well known, or finding new ways of presenting the many and varied facets of our home life.

Our series of 'Slow' guides now has 19 titles covering regions from Cornwall to Dumfries and Galloway, while our 'main' series now also incorporates guides to Orkney and both the Inner and Outer Hebrides. We also have several wildlife titles and travel narratives which focus just on Britain, including bestsellers from Phoebe Smith and James Lowen, and new for this year is the mouth wateringly inspirational Britain in a Bottle, which for the first time gathers together in one volume breweries, cider mills, distilleries and vineyards from around the country. So, we say Cheers! to all our readers who are enjoying exploring Britain with us, and here's to the next 20 years!

BRITAIN IN A BOTTLE

A visitor's guide to the breweries, cider mills, distilleries and vineyards of Great Britain
Ted Bruning and Rupert Wheeler

Recent years have seen a huge increase in the number of breweries, cider mills, distilleries and vineyards not just operating around Britain but also welcoming visitors, from small, single-man producers working from home to large, world-famous labels. Now, for the first time, they have been gathered together in a single book which celebrates their craftsmanship, pinpoints their locations, describes who they are and what they do, and provides detailed information about how you can visit and sample their wares.

Whatever your tittle, this is a book for anyone interested in the noble art of distilling.

WILD WOODS

An explorer's guide to Britain's woods and forests

Alvin Nicholas and Martin Cray

Explore over 450 of the most magical, extraordinary and lesser-known woods and forests in England, Scotland and Wales with this unique, practical and fully illustrated book. Featuring stunning photography and lively travel writing, it's divided into easy-to-navigate geographical sections – Southwest England, South and East England, Wales, Central and Northern England, and Scotland – and covers everything from the best campsites, bothies and quirky accommodation through to wild swimming, walking trails, types of woodland and forest, cycling routes, horseriding, wildflowers and wildlife, dark skies and star-gazing, foraging, lost ruins and sacred, mystical and haunted sites. Detailed, user-friendly instructions help to create wild weekend escapes and you can also learn about 'lost beasts' – megafauna such as wolves – no longer present and the evolution of ancient woodland. Also included is a series of 'Best for...' recommendations, from 'Best for Ghosts and Legends' to 'Best for Deep Forest Experiences', as well as waterfalls and canoe adventures among others.

SOCOTRA

Hilary Bradt and Janice Booth

This new, full-colour title is the first and only guide available to the largest of the four islands that make up the UNESCO World Heritage Site of the Socotra Archipelago in the Arabian Sea, 240 miles offshore from their mother land, Yemen. Everything needed for a successful trip is covered, from pre-departure planning, getting there, tour operators and where to stay to full details of the extraordinary range of endemic wildlife that has earned the islands the reputation of 'The Galapagos of the Indian Ocean'.

BHUTAN

Stuart Butler

A proudly independent and peaceful Buddhist kingdom, Bhutan is back on the tourist trail after decades of self-isolation, and this new title is the most up-to-date guide to the country available. Everything needed for a successful trip is included, from practical information to where to go, what to see and how to get there, including details of Bhutan's spectacular biodiversity: over 678 species of birdlife and 200 species of mammal, including the Bengal tiger and red panda, have been recorded here.

URUGUAY

Tim Burford

The only dedicated English-language guide, providing in-depth coverage of the capital Montevideo and detailed information on the UNESCO-listed coastal city of Colonia del Sacramento as well as Punta del Este. Thoroughly updated, it includes details of cattle-ranching estancias and where to play polo and coverage of the western wetlands and birds in Cabo Polonio and Santa Teresa. Uruguay's active food and wine scene is also explored, and so too is the country's distinctive Afro-Uruguayan heritage, most noticeable during the world-beating 80-day Carnaval season.

ZANZIBAR

Chris and Susie McIntyre, with Philip Briggs

This new, tenth edition provides the most comprehensive coverage available and includes, in detail, all of Zanzibar's accommodation options for all budgets. It also goes into greater depth on the history, culture and sights. Although easily combined in a trip, few other guide books cover the islands of Pemba and Mafia in any detail, if at all. A dedicated section on southern Tanzanian safaris is also included, making it ideal for a bush and beach combination.

TRAVEL WRITING

WILD ABANDON

A journey to the deserted places of the Dodecanese
Jennifer Barclay

'There's something about abandoned places which moves me and captures the imagination.' So says Jennifer Barclay, seasoned travel writer and long-term resident of Greece, as she walks with her dog and her backpack through the deserted spaces of the Dodecanese, islands that were once bustling but are now half forgotten and reclaimed by the wild due to a mix of misfortune and the lure of opportunity elsewhere. Join her on a journey through abandoned villages and farms, cave-houses and captains' mansions, the homes of displaced Muslim fishermen and poets, as she discovers beauty in the ruins, emptiness and silence, and inspiration in the stories of people's lives. A long-term resident of Greece, Jennifer Barclay spent more than four years researching Wild Abandon, visiting islands multiple times and talking to local people to hear their stories. Wild Abandon is an elegy in praise of abandoned places and a search for lost knowledge through the wildest and most deserted locations.

Once this land was well-used, full of crops. The island had to be self-sufficient. In the hills were hundreds of oaks, once used for dyes and tanning, and gramithia or turpentine trees, whose tiny, hard berries were eaten as nuts or ground into oil. The goats would have been herded and used for their milk, hair and hides; moved from pasture to pasture, not left to their own devices. Many bushes were used medicinally.

It's all still there; though trees like almonds are now abandoned and unproductive, the island is rich with wild and naturally cultivated foods: olive oil, fish, salt and herbs and capers, wild asparagus and snails. More people grow fruit and vegetables in their fields since the economic crisis, once again out of necessity. Small-scale farms help the wildlife. Mice and lizards and baby partridges are good for the eagles.

We follow the ridge back towards the village, sometimes following the terraces, sometimes pulling ourselves up the rocks. There are purple blooms on the sage bushes, and endless tiny blossoms in blue and yellow, white and pink. On a flattish area we find a threshing circle; after a tough scramble up a steep slope we approach a semi-circular tower with tiny windows looking out to sea in all directions and steps up to the top. I watch the silver, rippling sea and clouds casting their shadows.

After a couple of hours or so, my legs are covered in scratches and tired enough that I must be careful not to fall. We get a little fractious at times like this; Lisa has no patience with my stopping to take photos of flowers, and I have no patience with her taking detours to scare partridges. I'm glad there's no-one around to hear me talking to my dog: 'Well, this was your idea...'

THE BRADT NEW TRAVEL WRITER OF THE YEAR COMPETITION

For over 20 years Bradt has run annual competition for unpublished travel writers. The awards are now run in association with the Edward Stanford Writing Awards, and three finalists are invited to the awards ceremony in London.

The 2019 competition was won by Celia Dillow (pictured here with Colin Thubron, winner of the Lifetime Achievement Award) for her story, Reflections of Dubai. Celia won a stay at the Wilderness Hotel Inari, Lapland, courtesy of Wexas Travel, and a commission to write about her trip for Wexas Traveller magazine, as well as a place on our travel writing seminar with Travellers' Tales.

For details of the next New Travel Writer of the Year competition please see our website or sign up for our newsletter.

THE TRAVEL WRITER'S WAY

Turning your travels into stories
Jonathan Lorie

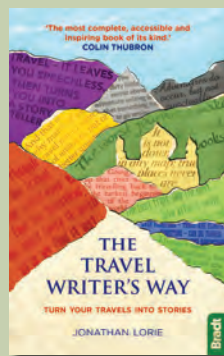

"The most complete, accessible and inspiring book of its kind."
– Colin Thubron

"A unique and completely invaluable guide to the dark arts of travel writing. Highly recommended." – William Dalrymple

Jonathan Lorie has been writing travel since 1999, first as the Editor of Traveller magazine, and now for national newspapers and magazines. In 2004 he set up Travellers' Tales, Britain's leading training agency for travel writers and photographers, followed by the Travellers' Tales Festival, which brings together the world's greatest travel writers and photographers at the Royal Geographical Society in London. He has judged many travel writing awards, including the Thomas Cook Travel Book Award, the Dolman Prize and the Bradt New Travel Writer of the Year competition.

BIG CATS AT BRADT

A CHEETAH'S TALE

HRH Princess Michael of Kent

"A cautionary tale of Africa's most beautiful and rarest of big cats."

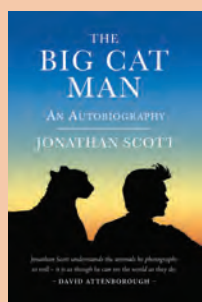

– Wilbur Smith

"I've always felt that the world should hear Princess Michael's own story of adventure, derring-do, heartbreak and struggle.

An informative and touching book which gives us pause for reflection.' – Tony Fitzjohn – Field director, George Adamson Wildlife Preservation Trust

CHRISTIAN THE LION

The Illustrated Legacy

John Rendall & Derek Cattani

The story that captured the imagination of the world...

John Rendall's first book about Christian, the lion cub bought at Harrods, was a million seller in the 1970s and enjoyed a huge resurgence of interest after a YouTube clip of their reunion in Africa went viral in 2006. This handsomely illustrated new book collects Derek Cattani's never-before-seen pictures of Christian and updates the story to the present day.

As we were going to press with this year's catalogue, we completed the acquisition of Footprint Guides. Footprint has a long, proud history (going back to 1924 in the case of the South American Handbook) and a specialism in guides to Latin America and the Caribbean. Here is a list of available Footprint guides, all of which can be ordered from your normal Bradt supplier. You can find more information at www.footprinttravelguides.com.
